May our grateful Hearts, and thoſe of our Poſterity, never loſe the juſt Senſe of the two ever memorable Periods of the Riſe of Britiſh Liberty and Greatneſs. The Revolution, and that diſtinguiſhed Day, which put theſe Kingdoms under the Protection of your Majeſty's moſt Auguſt Houſe! an Happineſs, confirmed to us by the preſent auſpicious Event.

May Peace return, and finiſh the Glory and Honor which have adorned your Imperial Crown; and may the benign Influence of your Majeſty's Reign never ceaſe; but may the Royal Infant, from a ſteady Attention to your Majeſty's Inſtructions, and Obſervance of your Virtues, continue to theſe Kingdoms thoſe Bleſſings, which we have conſtantly experienced under the Government of your moſt Illuſtrious Family.

Senſible as we are of the Happineſs we enjoy under your Majeſty's gracious Government, we cannot but be thankful for the Almighty's Goodneſs in giving us the Proſpect of the Continuance of the domeſtick Proſperity of this Nation in your Royal Line, more pleaſing than the Triumphs of the moſt ſucceſsful War. A Prince born among us, and educated under the Care of ſuch Illuſtrious Parents, will, doubtleſs, learn by their bright Example, that the Greatneſs of a King is founded on the united Affections of His People.—The Birth of his Royal Highneſs on the Anniverſary of the Acceſſion of your Majeſty's Family to the Crown of theſe Realms, will make ſucceeding Generations regard that Day, as ever propitious to the Laws and Liberties of Great Britain.
